

Harley Street Annual GP Symposium September 2019

On 21 September 2019, we held our annual symposium for primary healthcare professionals at The Regent Hotel and this year's theme was "Breathlessness – Heart Failure & Beyond"

The Harley Street Annual Symposium has always been our commitment to engage GPs to share medical updates and foster better co-management of cardiovascular diseases for our common patients.

This year's symposium theme was centred on heart failure and there is a growing need for primary health care professions to diagnose heart failure early and offer right treatment plan for patients. Dr Rohit Khurana's topic on diagnosis of heart failure aims to provide GPs with tools used for diagnosis and management guidelines for heart failure. Our latest addition, Dr Michael MacDonald shared on heart failure with special focus on diabetic patients who are often manage in the primary care setting. Dr Reginald Liew wrapped up the symposium with an overview of heart failure therapies available and case studies.

It was an afternoon well spent on engaging the primary care network and we would like to thank all GPs who attended the event and our sponsor for supporting the event.
